

Suboxone

If you are having trouble using too many pain pills or heroin, suboxone can help.

What is Suboxone?

- Suboxone is a medicine that can help you recover from using pain pills or heroin. It is a strip that you put under your tongue every day.

How can Suboxone help me?

- Suboxone can help stop drug cravings.
- Suboxone can help keep you from having withdrawal sickness.
- Suboxone has less of a risk of overdose than pain pills or heroin.

How do I get Suboxone?

- You can get Suboxone at Community Healthcare Network.
- You will meet with a counselor and a doctor to find the right dose for you.
- Your doctor and counselor will check on you when you start taking the medicine to make sure you are okay.
- You will come into the health center each week to get your medicine.

Suboxone doesn't work for everyone.

- Suboxone doesn't work if you are using a lot of drugs. It is meant for people who are ready to recover from drug abuse.
- If Suboxone isn't right for you, your counselor will help you find other ways to stay well.
